Child Protection Conferences

Information for Children

What is a Child Protection Conference?

It is a meeting held by Lancashire Children's Social Care when someone is concerned that you may have been harmed

What is the conference for?

The meeting is held to get people together from different agencies e.g. police, health and schools, to discuss if you or your family need some help so they can make sure you are safe from harm in the future.

Can I go to the conference?

Yes, you can if you want to and are old enough to join in. This is usually when you are 10 or over.

After talking with you and your parents, the social worker will decide if it is in your best interests to attend part of the meeting. You may be asked to leave if confidential information is being discussed about other people.

Attending and taking part in the conference

“Take someone who’s not part of the meeting to support you”

“We won’t use weird words so you can understand”

“Write down what you want to say beforehand as you might forget when you’re there”

“We’ll tell you where the toilets are and where you can get a drink”

“We will remind you that you don’t have to go to the meeting”

“I take a booklet round with me for a couple of weeks before the meeting and write stuff in it that I want to say at the meeting”

“Take something to look at or do if you get bored or need to leave the meeting”

“Tell your supporter if there is anyone you are frightened to say things in front of”

“Decide a signal to tell your supporter you want to say something or leave the meeting”

Who will be at the conference?

You will already know some of the people at the conference, such as your social worker and someone from your school

There is normally about 10 people at the meeting, including your parents/carers

Some people will be invited who you may not know because they have an important job in protecting children

Ask your social worker if you want to know exactly who is invited to the meeting

The chairperson will make sure that you and everyone else has a chance to speak

Someone will be there to take notes of the meeting so that everyone remembers what's been agreed

How can I tell everyone what I think?

Your views are very important, whether you go to the conference or not!

The people at the conference have to consider your wishes and feelings.

Your social worker will ask you what you think and will include your wishes and feelings in their report.

There are a number of ways you can give your views:

- Speak to your social worker.
- Write down or draw what you have been thinking and what you want to say.
- Ask your social worker if you can record your views.
- Talk to the chairperson before the meeting to decide how you want to give your views.
- You can give your views to another person who is attending the conference.

What can the conference decide?

The conference will decide if there needs to be a Child Protection Plan to protect you and keep you safe.

Information from the meeting will only be shared with people who will help keep you safe.

Everything that is said at the meeting is confidential

What if I need help to take part in the conference?

You can have an adult you trust to come along to support you or they can go instead of you

If you have any speech, hearing or reading difficulties, your social worker will make sure you get the support you need.

If your first language is not English, your social worker can arrange for an Interpreter to come to the meeting.
